

The limit should not be lifted, in fact I think the limit is too high already. The conglomeration of music stations have lead to more homogeneity in broadcasted music and has made it harder for artists to get their music well-known and for listeners to here what they want.